Düsseldorf, December 2022

It's a glorious, sunny summer day in the year 2070. You were born in the year 2000. But only recently, after five exhausting decades, your childhood dream has finally become a reality. The closely related, most loving people from your environment, now have the opportunity to live together as long as they want, and also to enjoy the further relations and highly valued acquaintances. In the following picture, you are the first person in the foreground to stand out (the grandmother with the leaf broom). At last you can relax and devote yourself to such trivial activity. Not to further maintain the well-kept lawn, but all to yourself, to keep fit, to have the exercise in the fresh air, and most of all, to enjoy the togetherness with all your BaFa.

The name BaFa is actually an abbreviation of the term "Basic Family", but the full name is now only used in the official language of the GeWA (whose full name is the Global World Administration). Your BaFa, like every other around the world, leases one hectare of land from GeWA for your housing development. You may live here as long as you wish.

The complex consists of a central meeting house, where besides the central large room for all your ceremonies and gatherings, there are also some guest rooms and even guest apartments, ready for your dear guests.

On the west side of the facility there is a flower garden, a 500 m² (coverable) swimming pool and a similar sized sports facility that can be freely designed according to your wishes.

Much of the area is still available for your common desires. Some other BaFas use it mainly as a kitchen garden, others simply wood it, and still others, where the children are still of preschool age, create a large playground, both in summer and in winter. In winter, the large swimming pool also serves as a walkable ice rink. The whole BaFa facility is electrically self-sufficient all year round, thanks to the many solar panels on intentionally large roof areas.

Your own BaFa is formed by the following persons: You are the grandmother₁; your life partner (traditionally also called husband) is the grandfather₁. Your two children are now also already parents: your daughter is the mother₁, and she has as her life partner the father₁. Your son is the father₂, and he has as his life partner the mother₂. The parent couple₁ has two children, daughter₁ and son₁. The parent couple₂ has the son₂ and the youngest of the BaFa, the daughter₂.

You live with your partner in the one-story house on the left in this picture. Your daughter, mother1 lives with her partner and her children in the house at the very back (next to the flower garden), and your son (father2) lives with his partner (the mother2; the woman with the spindle lawn mower in the first picture) and with their two children in the house in between. The house at the very front in the left row is a hobby house, where each member of the BaFa can devote himself to an activity, which could disturb the other members of the family in any form (for example, loud music or tinkering). Your technical equipment for the whole plant is also located there.

Of course, your son's life partner, mother2, is from another BaFa, possibly a completely different City, or even Nation. But because she feels very close to her own mother, her mother, grandmother2, has also moved in with her to live with your son's family. She lovingly takes care especially of her youngest granddaughter, daughter2. The father of your daughter's partner, grandfather2, also lives with his son in house 3 of your BaFa. In total, you are 12 people in three generations, a standard composition of a BaFa.

But this does not fully describe your happiness. Your twin sister, who for a long time actively worked with you for the realization of the idea of familiar-participatory democracy all over the world, has moved in with her own BaFa right next to you. However, she has unfortunately been widowed twenty years ago. Her BaFa lives on the neighbouring property, with the same area of one hectare. So your grandchildren can also visit their great aunt, their two aunts and uncles, freely, almost every day. Especially when they want to do something together with their three cousins and the cousin. So this second BaFa is composed like this:

Your Great Family includes ten other BaFas who live close together, forming the largest existing group of your relatives. Although not all of them are directly biologically related to you or your partner, you are also very fond of all of them. Also, some members of your in-laws' families live nearby, on the same access road that connects your Great Family to the wider residential area of your Clan. So your Great Family consists of 12 BaFas, and your Clan of 12 such Great Families. If you imagine your plot of land, where you live, as a leaf of a tree, you can represent the residence of your whole Clan (of 12 Great Families, or about 144 BaFas) in the form of such tree, as in the picture below.

The space inside the red ellipse houses all the public facilities necessary for you, where the Clan's living together can be cultivated and intensified.

Also the residence of the next level of kinship and acquaintance, a District, can be imagined similarly, localized either along a straight axis, or around a common center.

In such a District of a City live together about 20 to 21 thousand people belonging to twelve kinship Clans, which the table below makes clear.

Already in the 2020s, people have realized that all life in our Universe is energetically quantized. This means that human groups, which are nothing but "naturally organized energy," must also follow this pattern of the quantum spectrum.

Demographic quantum spectrum of human societies

Human group; Number of people	Level	Subgroups of the group	Reachable per- sonal contact range
World; ~ 5000 M	9	12 Continents	140 Nations

The meaning of the whole transformation of the world community, to which you have dedicated your whole life, was and is the preservation of the most important achievement of mankind so far, namely democracy, from the destructive attempts of all former ideologies (like fascism, communism, or capitalism) to undermine this idea. Only after several crises and catastrophes of the 20th century it was recognized that democracy does not mean exactly what one wanted to take from the wording of the name "democracy". Not every vote of every individual can be perceived at the same time. The vote must also be "quantified". A representative of each BaFa carries all votes of the BaFa to the level of the Great Family and the Clan. Only then the representative of this clan carries the collective vote of the whole Clan to the level of the Districts and the City. And only then can the representatives of all (about 140) Cities of a Nation with a "collective voice" of the Nation represent it at the World forum of all (about 140) Nations, equally weighted for each Nation (which gathers a group of about 36 million people). These 140 "national" representatives all know each other personally. And only they represent all the voices of Humanity. If one of them does not behave democratically, it will be immediately visible to all the others. Only on this "quantized" Familiar Democracy, organized on the basis of BaFas, can we all hope together that it will help us to solve the enormous environmental problems that are still to come for us humans.

Some enormous problems that seemed unsolvable in your youth, we have already successfully solved in the last 50 years.

We have stopped destroying the world, ours, but more so our grandchildren's. We have razed most of the skyscrapers and the scary housing silos of human "ants" to the ground. We have recognized solar energy as a self-evident source of energy. Supported by geothermal sources and by hydro and wind energy sources, it provides all humanity with enough energy to live (and survive). We have given up the production (and consumption) of unnecessary animal meat altogether. We have understood that our task is to ensure the further evolution of as many groups of living organisms as possible. And this despite the certain prediction that in the long term we are at the beginning of the strongest extinction wave that the Earth has ever had to experience.

We have also totally abandoned the whole "military" mindset of our past. No nation of today's world needs an army of armed men who should be trained to be potential murderers. This peaceful "revolution" was unexpectedly easy, because already 40 years ago no mother of the world was ready to sacrifice her sons to the idea of inhumanity any longer. No human being of today's world (except policemen) needs a gun. Every human being belongs to a BaFa, which already in his childhood makes sure (and bears the responsibility for it) that he learns not to provoke conflicts with other people. Then he does not need to defend himself.

We have also been able to tame the eternal demon of previous millennia, the greed for money. All national banks, with their local branches, are again dedicated only to lending. Any fraudulent attempts at artificial "money multiplication" by private individuals are strictly forbidden and punishable by law.

The most important progress of all, however, has been achieved in the education of children and youth. Even your own children should be able to enjoy this new kind of education already in the 30s and 40s of our century. The banishment from schools of all "middle-aged" subjects, which can no longer support modern life in any way, was the core of the change. But what was most important, that was the extension of the education by the third stage, during which the 19-22 year old people acquire the theoretical and practical knowledge, what concerns the goal of their own and the social life, and how the peaceful, in the end also happy life in their own family is to be formed and secured permanently. This measure alone has greatly reduced poverty and crime around the world; I am sure these two misfortunes of the past will soon disappear completely from our lives. So: Keep going! Keep doing!
